AID HELD NEAR FOR SNOWBOUND TRIO

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE. Take as an example our statement yesterday morning that the purloiner of one of our calendars was known. Exactly five calendars were left on our desk yesterday by parties who apparently weren't so sure that they could establish ownership to them, Thanks. They add quite a little to the collection.

What has become of the person who used to paint signs on the back of cut-down automobiles?

Probably the most pathetic figure in the world today is the "unbiased critic" of shows. Someone started the idea that a show must be razzed, or if not the entire show then at least one of the actors. But in spite of these "masterpieces" the public still draws its own conclusions and continues to patronize the shows that please.

The almanac informs us that there are 356 more days to come this year and that yesterday was the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. And it won't be long before we'll be getting ready to tell you that there are only so many shopping days left until Christmas.

Snow looks just the same as it did in our youth we discovered yesterday. And again we are thankful that we followed Greeley's advice.

There are still several signs around town that infer that the Ford factory is not coming to Richmond. One of these signs on San Pablo avenue was first called to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce a year ago. It still carries its misleading message to thousands of motorists every day.

Now that football helmets have been put in mothballs it will soon be time to start baiting umpires. Some rabid fans that we know are already starting to collect pop bottles.

Thanks to California climate, however, we can enjoy the national pastime the year round. The brand of baseball being put out by some of the teams in this section would make many of the coast league nine look to their honors.

In spite of the safety campaigns that are being put on for the benefit of selfish motorists, there still are plenty of drivers who give you half the road—after they take their half in the center of the highway.

Press dispatches from Indianapolis tell us that the lives of five persons were snuffed out because a store keeper gave a purchaser gasoline when he asked for kerosene. Luckily kerosene is not used much in the modern home or we would probably have a great many accidents of this kind.

Walnut Creek has told Concord that if they will be content with a moderate bond issue for high school construction, they will be glad to come in. The purse strings are being tightened up on ribald spending of the public money. A $350,000 bond issue was overwhelmingly defeated in that district recently.

WEST HELD IN GRIP OF WINTER

PORTLAND, Ore. Jan. 8.—UP—Steadily falling snow covered a wide area in Oregon tonight. The fall had reached a depth of three inches in Portland and the Weather Bureau predicted that it would likely continue through the night.

Five persons were injured, two seriously, in accidents caused by the storm. Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Gaze 60, Bull Run Ore. and Mrs. David Koth, Laurel, Ore., were injured seriously in automobile accidents on ice-coated highways near Portland. Edward Tichnor, 46, St. Helens, Ore., suffered a fractured arm when thrown against a seat in a skidding bus while Alvin Oscarson, suffered possible internal injuries when struck by an automobile as he crossed a street intersection here.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8—(U.P.)—Requests for appearance of executives of Pacific coast oil companies before a federal grand jury were characterized tonight by K. R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Company of California as "present the disconcerting aspect of one department of the government challenging the legality of an action taken at the request of another department."

"It is a peculiarly unfortunate time for the Department of Justice to attack those who are endeavoring to cooperate with the government in promoting its policies of conservation not only in marketing but in the production of crude oil, and whose efforts are already attended with enough difficulty," Kingsburg said. "Such an attack will obviously encourage those who for selfish reasons are opposing these policies."

The head of the Standard Oil claimed "it appears that the investigation will relate to the adoption of a code of marketing ethics by the oil industry."

Code Seen

The grand jury has been asked to appear in special session here next Monday and requests have been made to have 33 secretaries and other agents of coast oil companies appear before that body.

"The National Code of Marketing Ethics was framed after two years of public effort on the part of the American Petroleum industry and to promote the principles of conservation in business in which the federal administration has shown so much interest," Kingsbury explained.

"The proposed code was submitted by the American Petroleum Institute to the Federal Trade commission and brought to the attention of the Department of Justice.

Scores Probe

"Later the federal trade commission approved the code, after it had made certain amendments thereto, and the code was then signed by all oil companies in the United States at the request of the federal trade commission. It is surprising that the legality of the code should now be subjected to investigation and attack by the department of justice.

"It would seem that the oil industry was justified in assuming that a code of marketing practices which was fostered and specifically approved by the federal trade commission and signed at the commission's request would not thereafter be attacked by the department of justice. In effect it is an attack upon the movement in the oil industry directly in line with the efforts of the administration as recently indicated by the conferences called by the president for the stabilization of business and the promotion of economy in business practices."

SMALLPOX ON VESSEL

HONOLULU, Jan. 8.—UP—An epidemic of smallpox on the steamer Golden Sun enroute from Honk Kong to San Francisco, has endangered 44 persons the captain notified United States naval authorities here late today.

"Have smallpox on board, all hands more or less exposed" the captain said, in a message to the commandant of Pearl Harbor navy yards in the Hawaiian islands relayed by the naval station at St. Paul Alaska. "Forty-four persons in danger. Please send doctor, smallpox nurse and vaccine."

The radio signed "master."

The Golden Sun loaned by the Oceanic and Oriental line and operated by the American Hawaiian lines, gave its position last night as latitude 39-15 north, longitude 178 west. It was estimated the ship was 1600 miles northwest of here and would require about seven days to reach Honolulu. The course has been changed and the Golden Sun was heading for Honolulu.

Naval authorities were endeavoring to establish direct communication with the ship to ascertain the seriousness of the epidemic. They said it was possible they would send out a tug to render assistance.

SEEK SANDS IN TAYLOR SLAYING

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8—(U.P.)—A manhunt that may extend around the world was underway today as officers everywhere began search for Edward Sands, wanted as a witness in the eight-year old William Desmond Taylor murder case.

Sands is one of the three "key" wisnesses whose testimony may clear up the killing of Taylor, a motion picture director, who was shot to death in Hollywood in February, 1922.

The other two witnesses, Otis Hefner, a paroled convict, and Henry Peavey, Taylor's negro servant, were located by the United Press and are available for examination whenever Buron Fitts, Los Angeles county district attorney, so desires.

Warrant On File

The hunt for Sands started after Los Angeles police issued a new bulletin and told police everywhere that he was wanted in Los Angeles where there is a warrant on file for burglary.

It is felt, however, that the burglary warrant, as well as drug selling accusations against Sands, furnish the means of apprehending him so that questioning in connection with the Taylor murder may be possible.

Both Peavey and Hefner, when interviewed by the United Press,

Suspended Term Decision To Be Rendered Soon

MARTINEZ, Jan. 8—Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie tonight took under advisement the question of whether or not a justice of the peace or a police judge can impose suspended sentences and later commit the offender to jail.

Judge McKenzie heard arguments in the case of E. B. Rendell, 64, of Richmond, a contractor who was arrested in October, fined $10 and given a jail sentence with commitment withheld. Later, Rendell was arrested on another charge and Police Judge C. A. Odell issued a commitment under the old charge and sent Rendell to jail.

This action is contested by T. D. Johnson, Rendell's attorney, who declares that 60 days had elapsed after the first sentence had been issued and that Rendell could not be committed to jail.

P. M. SANFORD AGAIN SELECTED AS HEAD OF LOCAL CHAMBER

P. M. Sanford for the last four years president of the Richmond chamber of commerce, was elected for a fifth term at yesterday's meeting of the directors.

He was nominated by Director J. F. Brooks, who declared that Richmond faces many serious problems in the next year and that it requires a man of Sanford's experience and acquaintance to meet them and enlist the support in Richmond and in outside cities which will bring the desired solutions.

George N. Rooker was made first vice president and E. B. Bull second vice president.

New Directors Seated

J. A. Christie, division superintendent of the Santa Fe, and Lester G. Eby, freight agent for the Southern Pacific, the two new directors on the board, took their seats for the first time at yesterday's meeting.

"Richmond is still in the middle of the stream with a stiff current to buck," said Brooks in placing Sanford's name in nomination. "We are confronted with such big public projects as the salt water barrier and the proposed Richmond - San Rafael bridge. It is not the thought that Richmond will be opposed to either of these public improvements, but there are bound to be many problems for Richmond in connection with them. In meeting these problems Richmond will at once appeal to her sister cities around the bay for assistance and cooperation. I know of no man so well equipped as President Sanford to draw such support from outside sources. We should not lightly cast aside the four years experience which he has had in Richmond community work."

Sanford Accepts

Sanford accepted the office, saying that it had been his desire to retire from the office, but that the unanimous vote of the board influenced him to assume the post for another term.

Sanford welcomed Eby and Christie as the new faces on the board, declaring that the chamber of commerce was pleased to have on its directorate representatives of the two transcontinental rail lines serving Richmond.

Reports were made on the last year's progress by Fred D. Parr for the publicity committee; E. B. Bull, harbor; George N. Rooker, industrial; Ralph Bergen, membership; W. W. Scott, traffic; C. S. Renwick, hospital; Aubrey Wilson, civil affairs, and T. H. DeLap.

Parr said it is his understanding that the new Ford plant will employ 2000 persons; the Filice and Perrelli cannery, 700; and a new industry soon to be announced, about 700, making nearly 3500 new workers to be employed in Richmond in 1930 over the previous year.

M. A. Hays, director, said the construction of the Ford plant this year will result in a greatly increased home building program resulting in the construction of the largest number of dwellings of any one year in the history of Richmond.

RELIEF PAIR NEARING CABIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—UP—High among the storm swept peaks of the Sierra Nevadas—starvation confronting them—Mr. and Mrs. John Nightingale and Nightingale's seven year old son were still prisoners of the snow late today.

Marooned by the blizzards of Monday and with more snow predicted for tonight and Thursday relief must reach them soon or their meager store of food supplies will be exhausted.

Relief for the trio, held in their summer cabin since Monday, was expected today with two hardy mountaineers trekking thru the heavy snows to their rescue.

Rescuers Near

Jasper Miley and H. Merema, experienced snowshoe and ski men, were believed to have attained a point close enough this afternoon to assure them reaching the cabin by nightfall.

Merema is connected with the Pacific Gas and Electric company, and is repairing the telephone line into Niagara creek, where the Nightingale cottage is as the rescue party plods in with supplies and skis.

As soon as contact is made, and if the line can be repaired all the way in, the news of the finding of the young Stockton aviator, his wife and son will be flashed by power company employes.

C. C. Wood, mayor of Oakdale, told the United Press late today that he held no fears over the safety of his daughter and son-in-law.

Mrs. Nightingale is the former Miss Evelyn Wood of Oakdale and Stockton.

Supplies In Cabin

Mayor Wood said: There is a meager store of supplies in the cabin, and if the rescue party reaches them tonight I believe everything will be all right. I'm sure that 'Jack' has had presence of mind enough not to tackle the

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

We Turn the New Leaves

EVERY woman knows that it's much easier to make New Year's resolutions for others than for herself. Trust the critic on the hearth to point out that her husband should resolve to—well, NOT to believe all he hears! Somebody's always telling the poor darling some circumstantial tale of joy or woe, which he swallows whole and defends to the death, if the c. on the h. even lifts an incredulous eyebrow. He wouldn't, he vows, be as suspicious as she for anything! She, on the other hand, wishes he would reverse the process recommended in "Alice in Wonderland" and practice not believing impossible things, in 1930!

Then a woman perceives clearly that her youthful daughter should resolve to make silk stockings wear longer—even the American Association for the Advancement of Science has just indorsed this worthy aim and pledged co-operation. ("Yeah?" cynically comments Youthful Daughter, as she contemplates the ladder which has even now appeared in one of the chiffon-weight pairs left by Santa Claus.)

As for the boys, the New Year's resolutions which a woman could write for them range from a vow to get up for breakfast without being called three times to a pledge not to view with scorn the minds, ambitions and importance of the entire female sex. No boy, need we add, is likely to reach the point of making either resolution under his own steam—to say nothing of keeping it!

YET, after all, it's for herself that a woman should be turning over a new leaf to-day. Frank confession is good for the feminine soul at least once a year—and, after confession, of course, should come the resolve to amend one's ways. Far be it from us to shirk either task! Here, if you must know, are our own leading resolutions for 1930:

We shall try not to beat the motor cars every time we cross the street. A car really can proceed faster than we are in the habit of walking, though we have a seven-league lope which is the despair of friends and family. Also a car carries a lot more weight—there's only one decision when a pedestrian disputes a conclusion even with a Ford.

It's good law and common sense to wait till the lights change, instead of dodging between fenders. Of course, we're always in a tearing hurry. Of course, in a tame metropolitan existence, almost the only sparkle in the bright eyes of danger is to be seen when daring an oncoming limousine to do its worst. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, we ought to be more careful when crossing the street, we hereby highly resolve to be more careful and we shall begin to-day—or to-morrow, anyhow—to wait on the sidewalk until the double line of traffic in front of the World Building and the Chambers Street ferry pauses. (That is, we'll wait unless we think we're going to miss a boat, or unless we simply have to get to the office in a rush!)

ANOTHER New Year's resolve we register is to learn to say—and think—and feel: "It doesn't matter." If there's anything in the world we need—ask the persons with whom we have business dealings, or the long-suffering members of our household—it's a daily injection of the serum of good-natured indifference. What we never yet have got firmly fixed in our head is the great truth that almost nobody can be depended upon.

Whether it's the baker who forgets to leave our bran bread, or the jeweler who hasn't finished cleaning our watch on the date he promised it, or the five-and-ten that is out of gray darning cotton on the day we want it, or the office boy who ties a telephone message into a bow-knot, or the composing room that's late with our proofs—somebody is forever wasting our time and nervous energy by slipping up on something. And, with an idiotically ingenuous faith in the possibility of perfect human efficiency, we get cross and nervous and fussed and tired out over fool details that go wrong, but that, even in their wrongness, are not worth the irritation we spend on them.

Don't we know it! So, beginning to-day—or, maybe, to-morrow—we shall practice repeating that most soothing formula, "It'll all be the same in a hundred years!" (However, we don't promise to say nothing else when our proofs are late—there will be limits even to our 1930 private stock of good-humored patience!)

IT IS also our resolve, during the year just beginning, to suffer suburban life amiably if not enthusiastically. Even if we do have to use up two and a half precious hours in daily transit via an overheated train that smells of dusty plush, an overheated ferry boat that smells of burnt rubber and a shabby station that smells worse than either, even if train whistles and wheels affect our nerves so that we wince physically at each blast and bang, even if all our friends and interests are in town—still we must, for the present, inhabit a suburb and what can't be cured should be endured philosophically.

Besides, the little mountain at the head of the street is beautiful with snow and Christmas lights on it, and, when two of us go out to walk after dinner, the moon is like a gold flower in bare tree-tops. (We'll try to remember, the next time we have to wade to the station through two feet of slush.)

All good things, including New Year's resolutions, should come in threes. Nevertheless, we wish to add a fourth and final private pledge for 1930. We hope it also is yours—for you can help us to keep it.

Resolved, then, to make THE WOMAN OF IT better than ever—here's a new column-leaf to turn over every day! (And no reservations on this one!)

TO A MAIDEN, FAIR BUT FRIGID

If my avowals in dulcet tones
Move you but to utter groans,
If your mind bids you be cool—
Judges me a silly fool,
Then let me cry, as one who knows,
Hades is the place for Rose.

But—
If you believe my pleadings true,
Do what I bid or ask you to,
If in my love you place full trust,
Believe me honest, sober, just—
Then let me with solicitude state
The Bellevue wards are open till eight.

MERLIN.

Who Sets the Example?

Boys and girls don't stay home as they used to, according to the Industrial Education Bureau's recent survey—which would seem to prove how dutifully the younger generation is following in the footsteps of the older.

ALSO HIS SHIRT

William Licausi, a grocer's clerk, has just been arraigned for grand larceny on the charge that, shooting craps, he lost $225 given him by Miss Margaret Barrows, after he told her that he had Wall Street "by the ears" and could make her fortune. But almost any woman downtown knows that the non-crap-shooting male, with that line, loses the $225 just the same.

New Year Thoughts

IT'S not just another year—it's a new year.

It's not just another day—it's a new day.

So also let it be with our thoughts, our hopes, our dreams, our deeds, ourselves. May they be ever new! For herein lies the secret of youth and of beauty, of charm, and of happiness.

This then is our New Year wish to you:

That your eyes gather new lights with each new day;

That your skin take on new radiance with each new breath;

That your hair store up new loveliness and lustre each new moment;

That with every action of your body it gain new strength and grace;

That with every thought and hope and dream you will add unto your mind and soul new charm;

That, in a word, your days, your years and you grow, be, not old but ever new!

And all these things are quite, quite possible if only you will make them so—through faith and works and a brand new point of view!

Remember this: that you are a living, breathing, growing being with power to grow better instead of worse, with power to grow brilliant rather than commonplace, and beautiful rather than plain, and young instead of old, if only, only you will to!

The solitary difference between the little and the great in this world, the dazzling and the dull, the feted and the lone, those who receive duty and those who are showered with love—the difference, my friends, is that little "will to."

Your Beauty Shop wishes for you all the health and happiness and beauty in the world, all the joy and attractiveness and love and adoration you are capable of. But if the thought is to become a reality, if the wish is to come true, then the credit must go to your willing! And if it helps at all, we wish you lots of willing power!

You and Your Child

Copy-Cats

WHEN little Mary says to her doll, mimicking her mother's tone, "Now go right to sleep. This is sleeping time, you know," we think her very cute. And when David says over his toy telephone, "Please send one pound of butter, and send it right away," we consider him a remarkably bright child. But one mother whom I know didn't think her child either cute or bright when he swore "just like his father."

But isn't this youngster just as normal as either Mary or David? One of the most striking characteristics of young children is their imitativeness. Naturally, they mimic those people with whom they come in closest contact. If we don't want our young ones to use bad language, we have to be very careful of our own speech. If we should like them to use a gentle, respectful tone in talking to us, we mustn't "yell" at them. If we want them to act courteously to the maid, we mustn't "call her down" in their presence. If we lie occasionally, the youngsters will most likely acquire the lying habit. If we sometimes indulge in tantrums, nine chances out of ten they will learn this trick, too. Whatever virtues we desire these little mimics to acquire we shall have to practice also; and if we have vices that we should hate to pass on we must shut them up tight in our innermost bosoms.

A woman recently complained to me that her husband had a "terrible temper," which he took no pains to control even in front of his little girl. She added that he was extremely fond of the child, but could not be made to realize the harm his bad example was doing her. Isn't it queer that people fail to see such a self-evident fact? They must notice how the little ones ape their words and mannerisms; and yet they blame the youngster's temper tantrums, lies and bad manners on poor old heredity instead of upon their own example.

What we are influences our children infinitely more than what we say. It is disconcerting to realize how these little ones seem to see right through us. It is very difficult to pull the wool over their eyes. Of course we can't be perfect. We should like to be, when we realize what a responsibility is ours in acting as models for our youngsters. I think, however, that even though we fall far short of perfection, our strivings toward our ideals will get across to our children and will light the way for them.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

I TOLD you once of the woman in the Bible who had two sons who were threatened with jail for debt. When she told the Prophet about it he asked: "What have you in the house?"

To be more modern, let us turn to this:

Suppose you had a husband who received a small salary and you had two daughters to support in a house forty-five miles from a railroad station or a town. How would you earn money?

I have just read a letter in a country newspaper stating that a woman in this situation used the following means to get money for the holidays:

She wrote the editors of some Northern newspapers (she lives in North Carolina) stating that she would like to send them boxes of mistletoe and holly, packed in Spanish gray moss, if the editors would run her letter in their papers.

She also stated that she had some real, Southern sweet potatoes and would send a hamper of them for $5.

I think this story illustrates perfectly what I have always said—if you can't make money where you are, you can't make it anywhere.

I do not know the woman with the two daughters and a husband with a small salary, but I wish her luck with all my heart.

And I say unto you, with all my enthusiasm for her success—GO THOU AND DO LIKEWISE, even if you have no mistletoe or Southern sweet potatoes to sell!

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

The highly nutritious egg renders almost any dish good. Unless otherwise instructed by the physician, the young, the aged, the well and the sick and convalescent have need of the egg in the daily diet. Some demand the raw egg, while others like the breakfast egg gently cooked.

Too great heat toughens and makes indigestible the delicate albumen of the egg. Even the healthiest individual is no longer expected to thrive on the old fashioned, hard boiled and slow to digest picnic egg.

NANCY DORRIS

Among the easily digested egg dishes is one that may be eaten by all members of the family with good effect.

EGGS IN NEST

Four eggs, separated
One-half teaspoon salt or less
One-eighth teaspoon pepper
Four dots of butter
Four slices of crisp toast

Setting time: Six to eight minutes in a moderate oven or over hot water.

Servings, four.

When eggs in nest are set over hot water, the dish partakes of the nature of a coddled egg treat, particularly tasty to the sick and appealing in its daintiness to the aged.

Separate the eggs one at a time, turning the whites into a whipping bowl and keeping the yolks in their shells until needed. Or they may be dropped into four little cups of egg cups. The object is to keep each yolk whole and exclusive.

Light the oven. Whip the egg whites very stiff. Butter the baking dish or four individual dishes and pile in the stiff whites. Make a hollow for each yolk in the fluffy whites. Place a perfect yolk in the hollow prepared for it and cover with a dab of white. Set the baking dish or dishes in the moderate oven for six or eight minutes until the whites are set. Remove from the oven, dust with salt and pepper and top with a dot of butter. Send to the table with freshly toasted bread, which is to be buttered as it is eaten. Stiffly beaten whites into four parts

Or for the coddled egg, divide the and turn into four buttered individual baking dishes. Drop an egg yolk in the centre of each, cover with white and set in a large baking pan. Cover each dish. Fill the baking pan with boiling hot water taking care, however, that no water enters the egg dishes. Let stand on the warm stove, or in a moderate oven five minutes.

Serve the eggs at once in their dishes with the dot of butter on top and a dash of salt and pepper. The fresh toast, buttered at the moment, accompanies the eggs in nest. The delicacy of the dish never fails to tempt sick and well.

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, December.

The King's Boys

For several years the royalists in France have concentrated their efforts upon winning the youth studying at the universities. The result is that the Latin Quarter in Paris, which is not solely the hang-out of artists and Bohemians, but also the district in which the Sorbonne and several other institutions of learning are located, is preponderantly monarchistic at present. Each year also the royalist chiefs call a mass meeting of the students at the beginning of the term and call upon them to become Camelots du Roi (King's Henchmen). This year at a meeting in the Salle Bullier it was Maxine Real del Sarte, famous sculptor, who exclaimed in the presence of 10,000 students: "Come over to us while there are still risks involved in fighting for the King. Within ten years the title of Camelot du Roi will become a title of honor. For within a decade France will have its King back on the throne." Audacious and optimistic prophecy. The students, in answer to Del Sarte's appeal, rose in their seats and shouted "Vive le Roi!" and for once the Hymn Royale thundered through the old Latin Quarter. No less than 5,000 gendarmes accompanied the student procession as it marched down the Boulevard Montparnasse. Every "Camelot" carried a club and the military formation they kept showed that there must have been some drilling going on. One of the most exciting moments at the mass meeting came when several professors climbed on to the platform to expound the reasons why they had embraced the cause of the King. Georges Bernanos, famous writer, also joined the movement in public. The ovation these men received was simply delirious.

Vampires

A human vampire in Dusseldorf has lured his nineteenth victim to death and then, following his habitual procedure, he had written to the police about the excessively brutal manner in which he had committed the murder, adding a map of his own composition, on which the location of the body is marked with a cross. The town is in a state of nervous collapse as a result of the series of murders, the more since the vampire announces that he is busy selecting his twentieth victim from the habitues of dance halls and night clubs. As the police are unable to trace this bestial criminal, all sorts of strange rumors are going the round in the Rhineland. Some old-timers are even advancing the hypothesis that the vampire is one of those beings of which Bram Stoker wrote such a hair-raising novel. Stoker called them the undead. Voltaire also studied their case and he came to the conclusion that vampires existed solely in such half-legendary countries as Moravia, Karelia and Wallachia, lands that seemed more distant in Voltaire's days that the South Pole is in ours. Vampires, said Voltaire, were restless dead human beings, who left their tombs at night, changed themselves into huge bats and proceeded to suck the blood of the living. Voltaire remarked that he knew certain individuals who did not require to be dead first to become bloodsuckers in a figurative sense. The ancients believed in vampires, too, he maintained. Why else was there always food placed in their tombs? Voltaire thought it significant that Kings were buried with the largest amount of food. Was it, so he asks, because they were the biggest vampires of them all? The great question that perturbed our ancestors was whether it was the body or the soul of the dead that ate the food. The matter was never satisfactorily settled, obviously.

Looking For Troy

An English archaeologist proposes to start excavating on the Island of Ithaca to find, if possible, some of the remains of the dwelling of the subtle Ulysses, and of his no less subtle spouse, Penelope. In connection with this one thinks back of the announcements, made some years ago by a "savant," who came to the conclusion that it was useless to go and look in Greece or Asia Minor to find the sites described in the Iliad of Homer. Those sites, he affirmed, were to be found in Great Britain. For Homer, according to the same "authority," had been inspired by certain old Celtic legends, and he proved it, to his own satisfaction at least, from the Celtic sound of some of Homer's names. Ilion, or Troy, the city beleaguered for ten years following the Helen-Paris escapade, was simply the spot where the modern town of Ely stands, and the immortal race, described by Homer, took place where now the hippodrome of Newmarket is located. And so, you see, there is always something to learn in this world.

HERE, BOY! COPY! COPY! COPY!

AFTER Jan. 6, a newspaper editor will be Mayor of Cincinnati. We look on this novelty with trepidation and suspect the early meetings with his Board of Aldermen will run somewhat as follows:

MAYOR (banging gavel)—Gentlemen, let's come to order. What'll we lead off with to-day?

ALDERMAN KRAUSS—Mr. Mayor, I'd like to make a speech on city improvements.

MAYOR—Go ahead, but keep it down to two sticks. We're crowded to-day.

ALDERMAN KRAUSS—I beg your pardon?

MAYOR—I said go ahead and speak, but make it as short as possible and get all the facts in your opening paragraph.

ALDERMAN KRAUSS — Ahem! Mr. Mayor and fellow Aldermen, it strikes me if we erect the proposed art museum it would be one of the best features of Cincinnati.

MAYOR—I don't want any more features. What we're after are good human interest stories and lots of locals.

ALDERMAN KRAUSS — Yes, Your Honor. But building an art museum at this time would fit in with the prosperity program of that great President, Herbert Hoover——

MAYOR—You mean Herbert CLARK Hoover. Be sure you get your names right. Herbert Clark Hoover, 51, of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C. Now go on.

ALDERMAN KRAUSS—Well, as I was saying, I approve of the plans for the new art museum.

ALDERMAN CASEY—Well, I don't, Mr. Mayor! The plans of the art museum make it look too narrow. I think its Gothic front would be improved if we added three or four columns to it.

MAYOR—We can't get three or four additional columns! You know what the business office is! Why, they wouldn't give you an extra half a column if Henry Ford eloped.

ALDERMAN BINKS—In any event, Your Honor, I think we should increase the membership of the City Planning Board.

MAYOR—Increase the membership? You're crazy! Why, you don't need a Planning Board at all. All you need is just one good make-up man. Give him ten minutes and he could lay out the town so it would be easy to look at.

ALDERMAN BINKS—Well, for Chairman of the Planning Board or make-up man or whatever you want to call him, Mr. Hochtenbraucher is the ideal man.

MAYOR—Hochtenbraucher? Not a chance! His name wouldn't fit in any headlines. If you want a Chairman of the Planning Board get a Mr. Ball or Mr. Fish or Mr. Alt or some one like that.

ALDERMAN BINKS—Well, I suppose whatever you say goes, as long as you're in the Mayor's chair.

MAYOR—Never mind that hifalutin' stuff about the Mayor's chair. This is the city desk I'm occupying and my secretary, over there with all those papers, is in the slot.

ALDERMAN BINKS — Yes, Your Honor.

ALDERMAN KRAUSS—Mr. Mayor, as long as we're talking on city improvements, how about the Old Folks' Home addition?

MAYOR—The what?

ALDERMAN KRAUSS—The Old Folks' Home addition.

MAYOR—Never mind the home edition. Let's get everything in the early city edition. Early copy—that's my motto while I'm occupying this city desk.

ALDERMAN KRAUSS — Yes, Your Honor.

MAYOR—Now, is there any further business?

ALDERMEN — Not right now, Your Honor.

MAYOR (banging desk with paste pot and scissors)—All right. Meeting's adjourned. Now I'm going to make a three-em dash for a street car.

You and Your Child

By Irma Morris

The Don't-Want-To Child

"NORMAN, we're going out. Come, get your things on."

"I don't want to," is the immediate reply.

Why do so many little children refuse to obey every request, sometimes coming back with a "no," even before they've really heard the command? Perhaps we have been over-managing them, constantly directing and correcting; and the day has come when they have balked. Every child wants to express his individuality, and we should not interfere with his plans and pursuits unless it is absolutely necessary. We have to be constantly watchful so as not to give our children too many orders and prohibitions. You have probably heard the story of the little girl who, when asked her name on her first day at school, promptly answered, "Mary don't." Either such a child becomes absolutely spineless, or sooner or later she turns into a "Don't-want-to child."

Then, too, when a child feels that his guardian is unreasonable and unjust, he becomes suspicious of all commands. A peremptory and autocratic tone of voice, also, very often calls out a feeling of resistance.

On the other hand, a clever child will acquire the refusal habit if he finds it "works." If Mary, upon refusing to go to bed, is allowed to stay up a little longer, she may try the same tactics when she is told to take her bath or come to her meals. Children can readily be taught that our few, reasonable commands are meant and will be adhered to in spite of resistance.

Sometimes the youngsters decline to do what we ask because they enjoy the scene that so often follows their refusal. They like the coaxing and the threatening and our excitement. It appeals to their dramatic sense; and besides, it gives them such a feeling of importance to be able to distress so visibly the "big people." It's rather foolish for us to get so upset over what are usually very trivial matters. But, if we can't help feeling disturbed, at least let us not show our anxiety to these little folk. Treating their whims and caprices in a calm, casual, though firm manner is the most effectual way of dealing with them.

Often parents complain that their children are obstinate, little realizing that they have set the youngsters the example. The other day I heard a mother arguing with her little one for half an hour. The mother insisted that the child wear her pink socks, the little tot holding out for her red ones. Wasn't this mother exhibiting as much obstinacy as her child? Of course, when our decisions are about matters of importance and are based upon sound judgment instead of mere whim, that is an entirely different affair.

Sometimes children go through a self assertive stage, even though they have been wisely handled. But if treated with good-humored patience and firmness, this phase will quickly pass. On the whole, kindly courteous, just treatment meets with little opposition from children.

When the Light Goes Out

WHY send for the electrician when the bulbs will not light? This is probably due to a blown-out fuse which you can remedy without delay instead of causing great inconvenience, perhaps, by waiting for the electrician.

First locate the blown-out fuse by examining the fuses on the board. When looking through the transparent discs you will find one which has become cloudy and you will see a tiny black spot on the inside edge—this is the dead fuse.

Replace it with a new one. It is well to always have a supply of new fuses on hand. They will be supplied by the electric light company in exchange for the burned-out fuses.

"COMING EVENTS cast their shadows before"

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Why let over-indulgence ruin the flattering curves that make the modern figure so seductive? Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the irresistible youthfulness of the modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Fish Cannery Heads Appeal For C. C. Aid

In an effort to obtain support for their application to the city council for a lease upon city property at the outer harbor as a site for a fish cannery, Crivello Brothers of Monterey yesterday visited the offices of the Richmond chamber of commerce.

The applicants claim they will install filters so that the fish oil in the refuse from the cannery will not be dumped into the bay and contaminate the water near the intake for the municipal natatorium.

A committee consisting of L. G. Eby and City Manager James A. McVittie was named to visit Monterey and inspect canneries where the filters are said to be in successful operation.

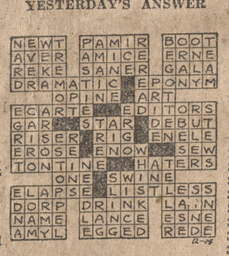
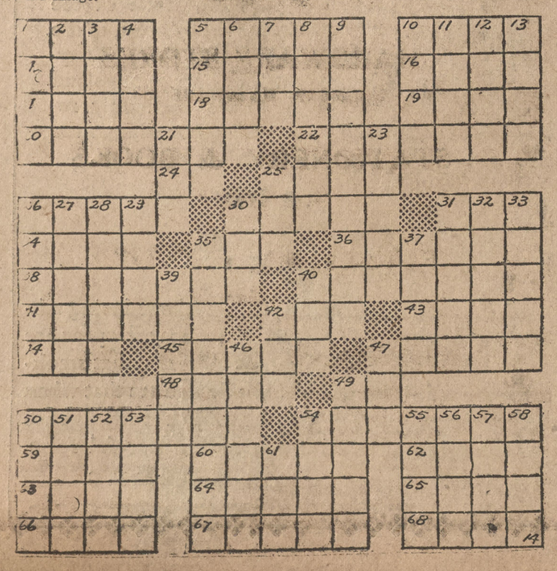
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER





FLIGHT UNITES SUBMARINE TRIO

Planes darting and swooping through the clouds, loop-the-loops death defying parachute jumps, tailspins, thrilling battle formations, hazardous landings and blazing planes—these are some of the thrills that will hold the audience at the Fox-California theater breathless when they see "Flight" the Columbia all talking roadshow attraction about the airmen of the Marines which opens today for three days.

This vivid and intimate story of the love and adventures of two heroic and daring flyers in the United States Marine corps reunites for the first time since they appeared in the much lauded undersea drama "Submarine," Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and director Frank R Capra. Again these three men have scored. Holt and Graves make a wonderful team. For the interpretation of sheer drama and the sincerity of character delineation, these two are the perfect combination. The direction of Frank R. Capra is flawless.

The film is supercharged with action and drama. An exciting football game, a beautiful Damon and Pythias friendship between two daredevil aviators, a three cornered love affair involving the two buddies which culminates in a smashing climax, the dramatization of the Sandino uprising in Nicaraga and the most sensational air feats ever photographed are all incorporated in this photodramatic feat. Lila Lee enacts the leading feminine role with a charm that is delightful and refreshing. Others in the cast include Harold Goodwin, Jimmy De La Cruz and Alan Roscoe.

You can't afford to miss this picture. I recommend it highly.

Mickey Mouse sound cartoon "The Jazz Fool" is also on the program.

SANDS HUNTED IN TAYLOR MURDER

said they would testify should the Taylor case be reopened and both expressed their belief that a motion picture star had killed Taylor.

Declared Dope King

Additional detail furnished by Hefner was that Taylor, Sands and Hefner were involved in a drug selling ring and that Taylor supplied the movie colony with dope.

That Sands was involved in the handling of drugs is known to Los Angeles police. According to Hefner, the body of Taylor was found by Sands when the latter was delivering a package of drugs and that a motion picture star had left just a few minutes previously.

Sands was last heard of in Vera Cruz, Mexico, Hefner told the United Press while visiting in the San Francisco office today.

"When I was in Folsom I heard from him several times," Hefner said.

Held Key

Hefner believes that Sands knows more about the Taylor killing than anyone else, with the possible exception of the murderer. The paroled convict does not think that Sands was the murderer, although he was sought as a suspect at one time.

Asked today for an opinion on the one essential thing to solution of the Taylor case, Hefner replied:

"Find Sands."

Apparently the opinion of Hefner was shared by police in Los Angeles who have broadcast a description of Sands, asking that he be arrested wherever found and held for Los Angeles police.

Goldfish, Swans Offer Problem

NORTON, Mass. —(U.P.)— A zoological problem of no mean proportions faces Wheaton college authorities. Two groups of persons interested in the newly-created campus pond have offered donations to the pond, with one group wishing to contribute goldfish and the other swans.

College officials have tried to determine whether the goldfish would tickle the swans' feet. Unable to answer this momentous question, they have submitted the problem to the Smithsonian Institute, Washington.

ROYALTY SEES ITALY PRINCE, MARIE, WED

ROME, Jan. 8.—UP—Before a galaxy of royal personages such as had not assembled since the war, the only daughter of the king and queen of the Belgians married the only son of Italy's royal couple in the Pauline chapel of Quirinal Palace today.

"I join you in matrimony in the name of the Father and of the Son and the Holy Ghost," Cardinal Maffi intoned at 10:55 a. m. and at that instant 300 white doves were released from a turret to the right of the Quirinal entrance.

The birds, circling beneath a squadron of airplanes high above were the signal to 50,000 Italians gathered in Quirinal square to let loose a mighty shouting.

Couple Cheered

There were vivas for the monarch, for Italy, for Belgium, for Premier Mussolini, but mostly there were cheers for Crown Prince Humbert and his blonde bride Marie Jose.

The wedding itself only five minutes. It was preceded, however, by a formal procession and followed by a mass. All through the mass references were made to the sacrament of matrimony and the duties of married life including St. Paul's exhortation, "husbands, love your wives, wives, love your husbands," which adjures the husband to love and cherish his wife even above his own life, and the wife to be obedient and faithful.

Four Witnesses

The Cardinal pronounced the marriage formula while the bride at the left, and bridegroom at the right, knelt before him. Four royal witnesses, holding a savoy veil, stretched it like a canopy over the couple's heads. The witnesses were the Duke of Aosta and the Count of Turin for Humbert, and Princess Leopold and Charles of Belgium, for Marie Jose.

Twelve hundred persons saw the ceremony. The chapel, where several Popes had been elected and enthroned, held only 500, but 700 others watched through wide open portals from the Cuirassiers' salon adjoining. In addition, faithful retainers of the royal household were permitted to see their beloved Humbert marry from hidden rooms looking into the chapel.

R. LAFOLLETTE WINS FINANCE GROUP POST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—UP—A representative of the middle western Republican farmers, in the person of 34-year old Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, brake into the tariff and tax-making Senate Finance committee today.

The Republican committee on committees, after a deadlock of several weeks and over the opposition of Chairman Smoot of the Finance committee, approved the Wisconsin "Baby Senator's" application for membership. Young LaFollette's famous father, Robert M. Sr., was ranking member of that committee when he died in 1925.

Senator Thomas, of Idaho, who sometimes sides with the farm bloc was given the other Republican vacancy on the committee.

A realignment of the major Senate committee also was approved at today's session of the Senate Republican leaders.

Senator Jones, Wash., was approved for chairman of the appropriations committee.

Johnson Appointed

Senator Johnson, Calif., will become chairman of the important Commerce committee which will have charge of inland waterways, shipping, rivers and harbors and other industrial legislation.

Senator Gould, Maine, who is retiring at the end of this session is to take Johnson's place as chairman of the Immigration committee.

Senator Hastings, Del., one of the "young guard" of administration Republicans was named to the vacancy on the Interstate Commerce committee desired by Senator McMaster, S. D., of the farm bloc

Smoot Scoffed

Senator Robinson, Ind., one of the World Court irreconciliables, was significantly given the vacancy on the Foreign Relations committee caused by Senator Edge's resignation to become ambassador to France.

Senator Blaine, Wis., was named to the Banking and Currency committee and to the Privileges and Election committee.

Smoot's threat to resign if LaFollette should be seated was taken lightly by the other Republicans, who decided yesterday to fight LaFollette on the floor if necessary.

VET HOSPITAL GROUP HOLDS SESSION

Considerable discussion over the propaganda that has been circulated in regards to the location of the Veteran's hospital was held at a meeting of the Richmond Veteran's Hospital association in Memorial hall last night.

Propaganda, according to the report brought up at the meeting, has been circulated to the effect that it was impossible to locate the hospital in Contra Costa or Alameda counties as it was to be located in the San Francisco area.

The committee pointed out that the San Francisco area, as considered in Washington D. C. takes in the entire state of California, and that the east bay has as good possibilities of obtaining the establishment here as San Francisco has of locating it on that side of the bay.

With the railroad, water, and site facilities of the eastbay the committee felt that the locations offered by the eastbay would be as satisfactory as those offered by San Francisco.

Members of the Richmond committee will attend a meeting of the East Bay General Hospital committee in the Memorial hall in Oakland tonight. At this meeting, sites in Alameda and Contra Costa counties will be presented for inspection of the sites committee.

The meeting last night was presided over by Fred Magart, president of the Richmond Veteran's committee John Miller, president of the citizens committee, which is working for the same end as the Veteran's committee was present.

BRITISH CONSUL AT KIWANIS MEETING

Harry Bottger will be in charge of the Kiwanis Ladies' night celebration to be held Jan. 29 at Mammy's Place, according to an announcement made yesterday at a session of the Richmond Kiwanis club in the Hotel Carquinez.

Bottger was also chairman of the day yesterday. John Toffoli, Richmond radio star, was the chief entertainer. He presented several accordian selections.

Gerald Campbell, British consul general at San Francisco, was the speaker of the day. His address was entitled "Ways to Understanding."

Campbell declared that in his opinion there is one method of insuring international peace. This is by a code of international laws, he said.

He suggested that every nation in the world meet and draw up a code of laws. A court would then be appointed and international policemen would be enlisted to see that the laws are kept. All international disputes would be settled in the court.

A method of promoting good will between the nations of the world was suggested by Campbell. He declared that nations should laugh with one another—not at each other.

The speaker lauded the Kellogg pact but declared that such a treaty can oly be kept if the people of each nation cooperate in keeping the letter of the law.

The older generation has announced that its purpose is to make the world safe for the children. Campbell declared that the children are going right ahead and doing this themselves.

He praised the Boy Scout movement for the work that it has accomplished and declared that much praise is due to the organization.

In discussing the proposed London naval arms parley, Campbell scored those who have been declaring that the parley is doomed to be a failure. "Let's wait and see," Campbell said.

Campbell closed his talk with a plea for good fellowship and good will abong the nations of the world during the new year.

You Can't Drown in a Puddle of Water

The hysteria of unfortunate stock market investors, and the mental panic of those who fail to study the country's economic situation cannot measure the prosperity of the Nation.

You can't drown in a puddle of water, and the American Family cannot be wrecked by the misfortune of a few investors.

The American Family eats well, dresses well, attends theaters, indulges in luxuries—even as before the stock market disaster . . . .

Employment is steadily on the increase; people are earning bigger wages, and the morale of the intelligent citizens is splendid.

The best thing that can be attributed to the stock market disasters is that it strips away the superficial affluence of the gamblers, and shows the reinforcements of American stability—industrially, sociably, and in a domestic sense.

Retail merchants of this city have never found business better. Keep aboard the Good Ship Prosperity—good times are here NOW.

NEW STARS TO APPEAR IN P.C.L.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—UP—Infield combinations have been emphasized by managers in building up teams for the 1930 season of the Pacific Coast league, a check of all eight clubs in the baseball circuit by the United Press revealed today.

Five of the clubs have tentatively picked the men who will be in their infields, another has abundance of material to play the bases, and the remaining two are working hard for a strong quartet close to the batter.

Most of the worries have developed from a need of each team for one or two new outfielders, possible bolstering of the catching staffs and improvement in the list of pitchers.

Stars Signed

The men lined up for infield positions by five teams are:

Hollywood Sheiks—Mickey Heath first; Otis Brannon, from St. Louis Americans, second; Mike Gazella from New York Americans, third, and Dudley Lee shortstop.

San Francisco Missions—George Burns from Philadelphia, first; Neal Finn, second; Eddie Mulligan, third; and Gordon Slade, shortstop.

Los Angeles Angels—Ray Jacobs, first; Frank Sigafoos, second; Fred Haney, third and Carl Dittmar, shortstop.

Fenton To Play

San Francisco Seals—Earl Sheeley from Pittsburgh, first; Ike Caveney, second; Babe Pinelli, third and Frank Crosetti, shortstop.

Oakland Oaks—John Fenton, first Joe Mellana, second; John Verges, third, and Bernie De Viveiros shortstop.

The Portland Beavers have an abundance of infield prospects, including Husta, Cronin, Gale Staley, Mack Hillis, O'Dell and Buster Chatham.

Seattle Indians, who finished in the cellar last year, and the Senators of Sacramento, whose destiny has been thrown up in the air by efforts of Lewis Morering to sell the club for $300,000 are still in the stage of considerable uncertainity as regards all players.

New Pitchers

The Sheiks, winners of the pennant last year, have Hank Severid and Johnny Bassler back as catchers. They have secured Emil Yde, Detroit southpaw, but they are still concerned about the efficiency of their hurlers and the power of the outfield.

The second place team of last season, the Missions, are most pleased at retaining Slade, who has led the league in fielding for three years, topping his performance in 1929 with .974. Their outfield will probably be unchanged, consisting of Fuzz Hufft, Walt Christenson and Ike Boone. They have eight pitchers and three good catchers.

All that is needed to make Jack LeLivelt, skipper of the Angels, happy would be three additional pitchers and a catcher.

Seals Lose Four

Although the eSals lost four prominent players, Gussie Suhr, Smead Jolley, Hollis Thurston and Vernon Gomez, their manager, "Nick" Williams, believes the men who take their places will maintain for the Seals the reputation of being "the most colorful team in the league." There will be Alex Gaston from the Boston Red Sox, and Red Wingo from Detroit to catch, Art Jahn from Philadelphia Nationals, Jerry Donovan and Ed Coleman in the outfield, and Jimmy Zinn among new pitchers.

Oakland has two new outfielders, Bernard Uhalt and Foy Frazier, Howard Craghead and Pete Daglia will be in the box again.

New faces in the Portland lineup will include Joe Bloomer and Carol Yerkes, pitchers; Walter French, outfielder; Cronin and Husta, infielders. The Beavers still have "Junk" Walters, one of the most noted players in the region able to play any position.

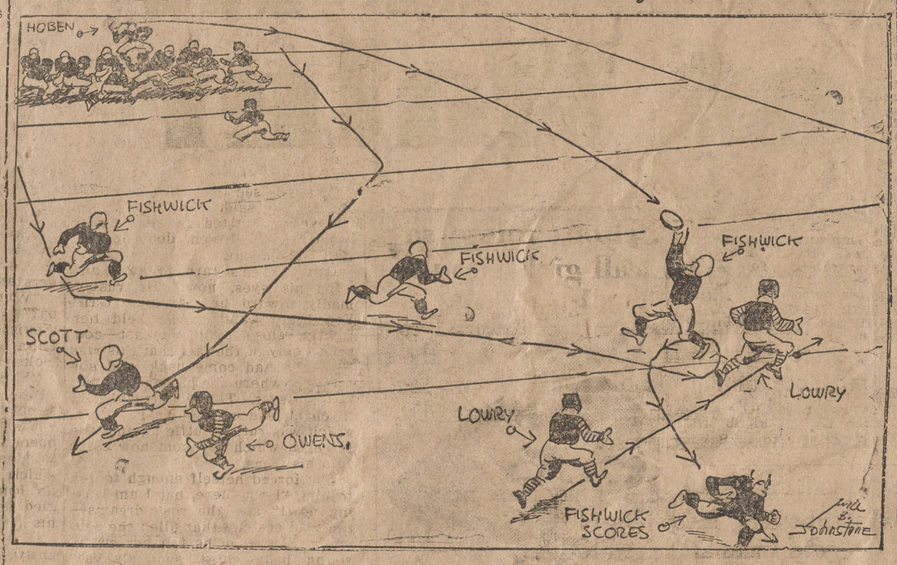
FREAK FOOTBALL PLAYS — — — By Will B. Johnstone



Yale-Princeton football games have continued for over half a century. In all the meetings of these ancient rivals there never was a contest to equal the one of 1927 at New Haven. That was the year that Charlie Caldwell the spectacular Yale back was barred from the game at the last minute. Without Caldwell, Yale seemed to be the underbulldog.

Such was a fact as the game turned out, but a freak play came to the rescue of the Elis at the close of the last period.

The Tigers were leading then by the score of 6—0. Yale was held for three downs near the middle of the field and Hoben dropped back, apparently to kick on the last down. Then came the freak play. As the ball was snapped, Hoben retreated with the pigskin poised for a pass. The Yale ends, Fishwick and Scott tore down the field to receive the pass, a gesture of sheer bravado. As Fishwick cut over to the left, Hoben let the ball fly in desperation as the Princeton safety men did their stuff. "Red" Owens shadowed Scott and Lowry dogged Fishwick.

From the press stand it appeared then that Fishwick pulled a piece of nifty head-work. It seemed that he outwitted Lowry of Princeton in this fashion. As he cut over, he glanced back at the flight of Hoben's pass, gauged it accurately, and deliberately overran the ball. To all appearances Lowry was deceived by this manoeuvre and followed Fishwick instead of playing the ball. Then Fishwick, having jockeyed Lowry out of position, turned on his heel, speared Hoben's pass and raced by Princeton's safety man for the tying touchdown.

Yale kicked the goal and later scored another touchdown against the demoralized Tigers, winning handily.

At the Yale barn party in Montclair, N. J. after the season, the writer complimented Fishwick for his brilliant strategy in winning the game. "Fish" was told how superb his brain work was, in foxing Lowry. His face went blank in amazement at the encomiums, and he blushingly stammered: "Strategy on that pass? Say, I didn't know what I did." His brilliance was unconscious action—an artistic freak.

Baseball Prexy Commits Suicide

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 8—(U.P.)—Alexander Julius Heinemann, the president of the New Orleans baseball club of the Southern league and well known over the country as a sportsman, was found shot to death in the baseball park which bears his name tonight. It was believed he committed suicide.

According to police, Heinemann had been dead about three hours when his body was discovered in the deserted park. It was believed large losses in the recent stock market slump prompted the act.

Starting Blocks Banned By 4 A

NEW YORK, Jan 8.—UP—Starting blocks have been banned by the Intercollegiate association of Amateur Athletes of America for its annual indoor championship games here on March 1.

Sharkey, Scott Sign For 15 Round Bout

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(U.P.)—Jack Sharkey of Boston and Phil Scott, British heavyweight, were signed formally today for a 15-round bout at Miami, Fla., on Feb. 27. The match will be recognized as the semi-final of the Muldoon-Tunney heavyweight championship competition with the winner under option to Madison Square Garden for a championship bout with Max Schmeling of Germany, later this year.

According to announced terms, each fighter will receive 25 per cent of the gate receipts. Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey, indicated that the Boston fighter has a private agreement with the Garden calling for $75,000 guarantee and 37 1-2 per cent of the gate receipts.

Nothing has been decided in regard to the supporting card but Vittorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, and Young Stribling, who met Sharkey in the Garden's Miami show last season, are being considered for places on the program.

Ruth Roland To Build Golf Links

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—UP—Ruth Roland, film actress, and said to be one of the wealthiest women in Hollywood, is still interested in moneymaking. The Ruth Roland corporation today was granted permission by the city council to construct a miniature golf course on Wilshire boulevard.

SAN PABLO NINE MEETS MOTORS SUNDAY

The postponed contest between the San Pablans and the Studebakers will be held Sunday on the First Street diamond. Although enthusiasm was rather dampened by last weeks showers, interest in the game has reached great heights during the week. Tied for first place in the Oakland Winter league, and holding a traditional rivalry, both squads are promising a spirited fight Sunday.

A "winner-take-all" agreement drawn between the two squads will also add to the importance of the contest.

Hurst will start on the mound for the Thomas Motors, while either Ball or Caster will see action in the box for the San Pablans.

The lineups have been announced as follows:

Thomas Motors—Figuerido, cf; Mailho, lf; Smaker, rf; Panella, 1b; McCoy, 3b; Krasovich, ss; Jensen, c; Hurst p; Whetzler, p; M. Labitisch and Compano, utility.

San Pablo—Silva, 2b; Kelly, rf, Church 1b; Martin, lf; Tierney, ss; Anderson, cf; Huzefka, 3b; Gualdoni, c; Rogers, p; Ball, p; Gregory Wickesser and Banducci utility.

Soccer Club Turnvereins Tangle Sunday

A strong outfit will be placed on the Nicholl park field Sunday by the Richmond Soccer club to meet the Turnvereins of Oakland. The game will be played at 10:30 o'clock. The Richmond boys have their eye on the top of the pile, and there is a chance that their dream may come true.

The contest scheduled to be played last Sunday between the Richmondites and the Ibericos failed to take place because of a rainy field. Six local players went to Hayward, but when they arrived there, the field looked to moist for comfort. The Ibericos claimed the game as their victory but the league officials ruled that the game be played over later in the season.

The Richmond Soccer club will meet tomorrow night at the Roosevelt Junior high school at 7:30.

Ray Tandy Will Head Card 11

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 8.—UP—Ray Tandy, 25, tackle of the Cardinal football team of last season, was today elected captain for 1930 by his 28 teammates who received block "S" awards Tuesday.

"Chuck" Smalling, fullback, was presented with the "Pop Warner award" as the most valuable player in the 1929 season.

Golfer Wears Monocle On Green

BOSTON.—Henry Jewett, director of the Repertory theater here, is reputed to be the only golfer in America who wears a monocle on the greens and fairways.

SEAWRIGHT TO HEAD LOCAL NET CLUB

W. L. "Doc" Seawright was reelected president of the Richmond Tennis club last night at a session in the city hall.

Other officers named were: Lawrence Phillips, vice president; Wally Kruger, treasurer and Mrs. R. Radke, secretary.

A round robin tournament, a city title match and a county tournament to be held in the near future were planned by the group for the near future.

Anse Remell was reappointed chairman of the touranment committee and he will look after the county tourney.

Jack Murdock was named subchairman and he will take charge of the local tournament. His assistants will be Carl Peterson and Lloyd Moore.

A concerted effort to increase the membership of the club will be made during the coming year.

The next meeting of the club is planned for Feb 12.

MANY QUALIFY IN L. A. PLAY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—UP—The qualifying round of the Los Angeles $10,000 open golf tournament was played over seven different courses here today.

The tournament proper will be played in three days, starting Friday, and it was necessary to cut the field heavily. The first 30 finishers in last year's Los Angeles open and the National open did not have to qualify and there were not many "big names" in action today.

At Rancho, Tom Kerrigan of New York, and Harold Long of Denver led the round with par 140 for the 36 holes today. Second was Alex Wilmott, of Kenosha, Wis., who had 143. He was followed by Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, with 144.

Two players also led at Wilshire. Neil Christian of Portland, Ore., and Neil McIntyre of Indianapolis had par 142's. McIntyre was two over par in the morning, but cut the disadvantage off in the afternoon.

Chick Fraser, of Los Angeles, and Jack Guild, of Tulsa, Okla., were next with 151's and were followed by John Black, of Oakland, and Mike Turnesa, of New York, who shot 152.

Cup Defender To Be Named Yankee

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—UP—The name "Yankee" has been selected for the prospective America cup defender yacht now under construction at Lawley's shipyard, Neponset, it was announced today by John S. Lawrence, chairman of a syndicate financing the yacht's construction.

The Yankee, one of four yachts from which one will be chosen to defend the America cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V next September, has been contracted for completion before the first of May.

Tigers Announce Grid Schedule

PRINCETON, N. J. Jan. 8.—UP—The 1930 Princeton eleven the last that Bill Roper will schedule that the 1929 Tiger aggregation played, according to an announcement here by the University Athletic association.

A feature of the schedule is that only one game will be played away from home.

GREAT SHIRES CLEARED BY BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan 8.—UP—Arthur "The Great" Shires, the Rudy Valee of sport, lifted his famous voice in his own defense today before the Illinois Athletic commission and was immediately acquitted of any skulduggery in connection with his fisticuffs debut at White City arena during the course of which James Gary, alias mysterious Dan Daly took what Gary later alibied in his home town of Columbus, O., as a premeditated nose dive.

The finding of the commission after hearing Shires, was that mysterious Dan went to sleep because of a smack on the chin here on Dec. 9. John V. Clinnin, chairman, began to make findings immediately after the great Shires told his honest, simple tale of whacking mysterious Dan on the kisser.

Mysterious Dan Banned

Everybody was acquitted except mysterious Dan, who was convicted of registering with the Illinois Athletic commission under an assumed name and of weighing in under an assumed age. He was banned for life from ever swinging a glove in Illinois again. If mysterious Dan ever returns to Illinois he won't even be allowed to wrestle.

After hearing the forthright Shires testify that all he knew about mysterious Dan was that Dan made a fantastic appearance in boxing trunks and that he, Mr. Shires, thereupon 'swang at him,' the commission entered into a frenzy of acquittals.

It even went so far as to acquit Mr. Shires of being psychopathic. This was a question which neither Mr. Shires nor anyone else had raised and seemed purely an evidence of good will on the part of the Illinois commission.

Too Much News

"The commission believes you were both sane at the time you engaged in the contest," said Chairman Clinnin smiling benevolently at the Great Shires. The latter had on a pair of new fawn spats and seemed none too comfortable anyhow. But he nodded acknowledgement.

Chairman Clinnin also gave it as the opinion of the commission that Shires was suffering from "over publicity" and he made it plain to Shires that the commission was disinclined to censure him because of that misfortune.

SHIRES, SPOHRER GET RING PERMIT

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—UP—Arthur 'The Great' Shires, fighting first baseman of the Chicago White Sox, and Al Spohrer, catcher for the Boston Braves, were granted boxing permits by the Massachusetts boxing commission here today for their scheduled four-round bout at Boston Garden Friday night.

High Quintet Gets Uniforms

The Richmond Union high school cagers received their snappy new uniforms yesterday, and are ready to enter the Alameda County Athletic league in full force Jan. 16.

Each player now possesses a red and blue upper, brown trunks and a blue sweat shirt.

The uniforms will be initiated tomorrow, when the Richmond Varsity athletes clash in a practice contest with Lodi high school in the Lodi gymnasium. The game will be played at 7 o'clock, and the local cagers will leave the grounds of Richmond Union high school at 2:30. A strong squad will be sent up to the San Joaquin valley town, and Richmond high has a reasonable chance of bringing home their first victory of the season tomorrow night.

Social Meet Held By Y. M. D. Group

"Turn about is fair play" was the slogan of the members of the Y. M. D. at their meeting last night. Everyone was required to present a skit, recitation, song, dance and what-not during the dinner and much talent was brought to light during the program.

George Baldwin was chairman of the evening, and was assisted in preparing the program by Willie Hillier. Next week's dinner will be under the direction of Bill Fowell and Tony Santaella.

GARFINKLE 5 FACES TEST TONIGHT

Garfinkle's lead in the city cage league will be in the balance tonight when four of the fastest local teams clash in the Richmond Union high school gymnasium. If the Garfinkle boys lose to the Santa Fe quintet and if the Studebakers are victorious over the Oleum Union Oil squad, Garfinkle's and Studebakers will be in a tie for first place in the city league. The B division contest will be played between the Civic Center Tires and the Nationals at 7 o'clock. The Studebaker-Union Oil game will be played at 8 o'clock, while the Garfinkle-Santa Fe clash will be held at 9 o'clock.

After going through the season in phenomenal style, the Garfinkle's five was conquered for the first time by Furrer's team Monday. The terrific game ended with the score board reading 25 to 24. Santa Fe will tonight attempt to continue Garfinkle's bad luck. However, they will not have an easy job to do, for the fighting blood of the clotheirs is now at fever heat.

Much significance is also attached to the Studebaker-Oleum contest, for if the Studebakers are successful, the Studebakers and Garfinkle's will probably be the squads that will compete for the cup.

Next week's city league schedule will be transposed. The card scheduled for Jan. 13 will be held on the 16th, while the games scheduled to be played Jan. 16 will be held Jan. 13

DUSTY MILLER WILL MEET DENNY

VALLEJO, Jan. 8—"Dusty" Miller, Vallejo negro, and Frankie Denny, Oakland light-heavyweight, have been matched for a ten round bout here Thursday night. This will be the first show here on the 1930 pugilistic season.

Vallejo was assured of this bout yesterday following a conference between promoter Vic Berry and secretary Genshlia of the state athletic commission over an announcement to the effect that Miller was to fight Matie Brown at Stockton the same night. Secretary Genshlia ruled that the Stockton match was not made with the signature of Miller to a contract and ordered the negro to appear in Vallejo.

The two boxers are reported to be in good condition for the fray. Denny worked out a few rounds here Monday night. The negro is doing all of his training in Fresno. He is forced to come into the ring weighing 175 pounds or less.

Promoter Berry has signed five preliminary bouts to round out the program.

Scott, Sharkey Match Opposed By W. Muldoon

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(U.P.)—William Muldoon, veteran New York boxing commissioner and member of the Muldoon-Tunney trophy committee which will decide the next world's heavyweight champion, is opposed to Madison Square Garden's program of staging a match between Phil Scott and Jack Sharkey at Miami Feb. 27, with the winner fighting Max Schmeling for the championship in New York in September.

Muldoon, who named Sharkey, Schmeling and Scott as the tournament finalists, believes the tournament bouts should be staged in New York. "My idea," he said, "would be to have the garden use Vittorio Campolo and Primo Carnera for their Miami show, with Sharkey and Scott meeting in New York in the championship semi-final early in the summer, and the winner fighting Schmeling for the championship in September.

Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

2946 Morgan Ave.
Oakland, Cal.
Nov. 19, 1929.
THE FONG WAN HERB CO.
Dear Mr. Fong—I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herbs prepared by you.
I had a complication of Liver, Gall-Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pains in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as if there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned the throat, was returned to the mouth.
This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year. During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any appreciable results. Both decided that an operation was necessary.
By good fortune, I came into contact with a man whom you had treated successfully for an Ulcerated Stomach, and he strongly urged me to take your treatment. This I did.
Results were noticeable the very first week, and now, after six weeks, I am entirely free from the terrible stabbing pains and the soreness over my Liver. My digestion is good. The old feeling of lassitude has completely disappeared and I feel much brighter and more energetic than I have for years.
I am most happy to strongly recommend the herbs of the Fong Wan Herb Co. as prepared by you.
Wishing you unbounded success, and again thanking you for what you have done for me, I am
Very cordially yours,
CYRIL MAW.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

INSTALLMENT XXVI

In the bedroom Gail stood listening to this conversation. First she trilled at the sound of Ted's voice. Then, hearing Mr. Molnar, her joy knew no bounds. It was short-lived, however, for when Ted announced Lena's presence, all the old jealousy came back, and she felt she'd been an awful fool. Ted did not care for her, she was convinced of that now. For if Ted cared for her, why had he brought Lena home with him? Oh, how she had been misguided—how foolish she had been to have listened to Mrs. Molnar and come here to face this new humiliation! And all this time Ted was carrying on this deception and that woman was simply pushing herself into Gail's place by her experienced wiles and her knowledge of the weakness of the male sex. She was sure Mrs. Molnar was innocent—and sincerely believed all that she had told her, but this poor woman, too, was being deceived.

Gail could hear their voices. Ted's voice and now the mother's—elated and happy for Mr. Molnar was back. That's all that seemed to matter and she felt very much "out" of the party. Lena, too, spoke and was welcomed by Mrs. Molnar although Gail did have to admit to herself that Mrs. Molnar's voice seemed a little strained. But the girl was from their own country—and she, Gail, was a foreigner to them. Ted had seemed so pleased to announce Lena's presence. Gail's heart sank. All at once she felt she understood clearly how little she fitted into this family picture and she made up her mind to leave. How she wished she could get away without being seen so that—when finally they came to look for her—she just wouldn't be there. But there was no escape from his room, except through the room where they all sat, and straightening her frock and her hair she glanced at the reflection of herself in the mirror, automatically, and went to the door of the room.

Ted noticed his mother's nervousness and asked, "What's the matter, Mother?

"May I see you in the other room?" she said.

As they started for the dining room, the bedroom door opened Gail walked out.

It was Ted's turn to gasp and wipe his eyes, now. He rushed madly toward her, saying, "Gail! You here?" and as he held her tightly, close to his breast—conscious only of the fact that this was Gail, she had come back, and she was just where she belonged—close to his breast. The girl struggled as much as she could manage to do, which was rather futile against the strength which had somehow come into his arms.

She forced herself enough to say to him, "I was here, but I am leaving now!" and the rosy dreams—the mad ecstacy that filled the soul of the boy when he felt her warm, young body close, suddenly vanished. It was as if some one had thrown cold water in his face.

He took hold of her hand. "You can't leave now, Gail, you can't leave!"

Gail glanced at Lena and Ted suddenly realized the situation. What could he do or say to save his catastrophe from happening again? This time it would kill him. Frantically he resisted her tugging as he heard her say to his mother. "I think you have enough guests for dinner without me. Good-bye, Mrs. Molnar, I know it wasn't your fault."

"I'm sorry, darling," the distracted old lady said. Ted, pleading with her, gazing intently into her eyes and still clinging to her hand, said in a low tone, "Gail, it isn't what you think."

Lena had been watching the scene with narrowing eyelids. Contempt for Gail's attitude made her disclose her anger. At last as the girl had wrenched her hand free, Lena took the situation in her own hand and walked over to Gail.

"Look here, Miss Wilson, you're making a fool of yourself again!" and as the girl bristled Lena kept on—contempt showing plainly in her face. "You're about to walk out on a man who loves you with all his heart. Haven't you sense enough to see that he doesn't love me? I'll admit it, I tried to take him away from you, but I couldn't do it." Because he loves you! It's as plain as the sun in the sky—and if you can't see it, you are the dumbest dame in this town!'

Ted broke in with, "What she said about my loving you is all true, Gail," and the tears were very near his eyes as he looked at her.

Lena still showed contempt for Gail as she said, "I'm the one to leave, and that's just what I am going to do." And she, of the more independent self-sufficient type, had distinctly the advantage. Her feeling of resentment against Gail and the girl's attitude toward Ted made her doubly important. And although she was sincere, Lena was not the one to let go an opportunity for a dramatic situation, such as had unfortunately developed in this house. She withered Gail with her glance—"The little fool," Lena thought to herself—"one of those clinging vine types of woman," whose injured dignity covers their actions with a cloak of respectability. Why did not Gail come straight out with it, and tell them just why she left—what was in her mind and give Ted a chance to explain—instead of affecting this attitude of 'grandness, as Lena interpreted it to be. And she loathed the type of girl Gail affected. Small, narrow, apparently—or rather voluntarily—helpless—too good to even face life right side up—needing the protection and sheltering of some man's love, else she'd sink by the roadside. All nice and pretty and so sweet! "Bah," thought Lena. "Thank God I am not one of those dames" and to Gail she continued her language unable to cover her disgust.

"I meant just what I said. You are the dumbest dame in this town—or else you think it 'lady-like' to be such a namby-pamby ineffectual girl. Why don't you be regular? You have never been regular in your life."

"Don't, Lena," Ted said, "Can't you see you are breaking her heart?"

"Breaking her heart?" Lena asked sharply—"She hasn't been concerned with the fact that she was breaking your heart, has she? And it didn't concern her that your mother's heart too was considerably bounced around by her treatment of you. No—it did not! Now, for once in her life when she is called for a 'show-down' she quits, just as she has always done—walks out of the picture—leaving desolation and misery in her trail, but still unconcerned about anything except Gail. Thank heavens—I am not made that way!" and Lena turned to leave the house.

"Wait," from Gail, as she saw the girl start to go.

"I'm sorry," Lena answered as she affected the air of one who is looking at a worm, "I've got a subsequent engagement."

But Gail was determined and she blocked Lena's passage. She looked shamefacedly at the crowd before she spoke—this time with understanding.

"Won't you stay for dinner with us?" Eagerly and happily Ted almost jumped to Gail's side, and as Lena came back into the room she looked approving at Gail.

"You've got sense after all!" to which the girl laughed and answered good humoredly, "Thanks."

Ted waited close by, his arms opened wide for Gail. She walked to him slowly, searching his face which was smiling behind the tears no longer manageable and smuggled her lithe little body close into his outstretched arms.

"Darling," he murmured reverently.

In stentorian voice the butler announced from the door of the dining room, "Dinner is served!" And this relaxed the tensity of the situation. Ted felt almost as a youngster full of pranks. He broke into a happy loud voice, "Shall we go in?" he asked of everybody, "Is everybody happy?" A chorus of "yes" rang through the room, and they formed a single filed parade. Ted was leading—Gail next—and the laughter and commotion and hub-bub was suddenly silenced when from the dining room came the strains of jazz music—syncopated—happy — carefree—the expression of the soul of young America.

The doors of the dining room opened wide—and there behind the festive table was Ted's band. They filed in to their seats and just as they sat down—the music stopped and a voice, bursting with joy, shouted to the assembly in general—

"Is Everybody Happy?"

NEW OCEAN LINE WILL CALL AT CITY HARBOR

The Christenson - Hammond steamship company will make Richmond a regular port of call for northwest ports it was announced yesterday through the traffic committee of the chamber of commerce, of which W. W. Scott is chairman.

These ships will supplement those of the Nelson line, which up to this time has been the only line making regular calls at Richmond.

The Christenson line will have boats at the Richmond inner harbor on Mondays and Fridays of each week loading for Columbia river ports and on Fridays for Puget Sound ports

Scott's committee hailed the announcement of the new shipping line with delight, inasmuch as it will give added facilities for moving Richmond and back country goods to northwest points.

Arrangements are under way to add James Todd of the Christenson-Hammond line to Scott's traffic committee to work with the chamber of commerce in ironing out the various problems which arise.

Scott reported that his committee is making progress in adjusting the joint rail and water rates to interior northwest points putting Richmond on an equality with other San Francisco bay cities to these points.

POST OFFICE SHOWS GAIN

According to a report prepared by Postmaster James N. Long, the Richmond post office showed a gain of four percent during 1929. In view of the fact that local conditions were slack during the past year, Long considers the gain a good one.

During the last nine years, while Long has been postmaster, the local postoffice has shown a gain of 63.7 per cent. Stamp business amounting to $72,000 a year is now being done by the local office. Long stated that money order business will exceed a million dollars.

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

When the sacks are empty, fill them again.

MOVIE 'EXTRA' TELLS OF SURRENDER OF LEE IN '65

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8—(U.P.)—William H. Hazel stood outside a farmhouse in the little town of Appomattox, Virginia, on April 9, 1865, a half-starved and ragged veteran of the Army of the Confederacy.

Inside the house Generals Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee were making history. They were drawing up the terms of Lee's surrender, which marked the ending of the Confederacy's secession from the Union.

Today, Hazel, at the age of 82, was called from the cabinet shop in a Hollywood film studio to see the historical event re-enacted before the cameras and microphones in "Only the Brave."

Vivid Memory

Memories of those April days of almost 65 years ago still are vividly clear in his memory and as the film surrender was portrayed by two men almost exact duplicates of Grant and Lee in facial characteristics, tears came to Hazel's eyes.

"We were trying to cut our way through the encircling enemy lines," he recalled. "We knew that it was hopeless and felt that the end was near. On the morning of surrender, we saw that the Yankees had cut us off.

"I can see, as plainly as if it were yesterday, a blue-coated officer come riding out of tht enemy lines. He carried a flag of truce, but some of our sharpshooters did not see the banner and fired at him. He waved the flag again.

Firing Stops

"There was no more firing and he rode up to where General Lee sat, dismounted, under a big apple tree. I was close enough to the general to see his face as he sat there dejectedly. The Union officer and Lee shook hands and talked for a time.

"A few moments later the two, accompanied by some of Lee's staff, rode away together. Immediately afterward, we were ordered to stack arms and not to touch our rifles again under any circumstances."

Hazel said they knew what was happening, and, in a way, were glad. The Confederate troops position was hopeless and growing worse. Except for one daily issue of hard tack and a tiny piece of pork, they had been without rations for five days.

Half Rations

"That evening, General Grant issued us half rations," he said. "He had his own men divide their food with us.

"It was evening when the two commanders met in the McLean house where the surrender actually took place. I was among those who wandered about and waited outside, knowing what was going on. I shall never forget the mixed sensations of those moments. Black despair mingled with relief that it was all over and that I was still alive."

Hazel enlisted in the Sixth North Carolina Volunteers in April of 1864 at the age of 16. He was with General Jubal Early on his famous raid through the Shenandoah Valley, which ended on the outskirts of Washington, and participated in the battle of Cedar Creek.

"The talkies will make this the most vivid of all Civil War pictures," Hazel said of the film in production. "The soldiers can show the feeling that was ours during that momentous surrender."

snow drifts on foot with the boy and my daughter."

Delay in the arrival of the supplies of food and extra skiis at the cabin was occasioned when Miley broke his skiis at Cow creek, a point about eight or nine miles from the Nightingale cabin this morning.

Resumes Hunt

Provided with new ones by Merema he was on his way again in a few hours.

Word of the progress of the rescue party could only be obtained late today by calls to isolated points above Sonora and through Angels camp to the Stanilaus power house high in the mountains.

At the point where the Nightingales' are believed confined by the snow it is 7000 feet and more above sea level and although the mercury climbed to 22 above zero at Sonora, considerably lower this morning, it was expected to drop to zero again before darkness.

By early morning Mayor Wood officials of the Pacific Gas and Electric company, and employes at the Stanislaus power house expect word by telephone from Merema at Niagara creek.

May Use Sled

Tomorrow, if the Nightingales are found not to have suffered privation, Miley and Merema expect to start back to civilization with them.

It is probable that they will put the seven year old boy on a crude sled of some sort and that Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale will don skiis or snowshoes.

It is not considered likely that the roads will be passable enough for automobile travel for a few weeks, drifts of from one to five feet in depth now cover the roads and trails at the passes, and more snow is expected to fall on that region before morning.

Warrant Refused

Efforts of Mrs. Eva Wren Nightingale of Oakland to obtain a warrant from the district attorney of Alameda county for her divorced husband very nearly started a police rescue party on his trail. The district attorney's office, however, refused her plea.

She claims that her former husband is given the custody of the child only on the holidays and that if he had been returned to her the day school opened he would not be suffering in the cold now with his father and stepmother

The present Mrs. Nightingale is virtually a bride. She and her aviator husband were wed only a few months ago. her father stated this afternoon .

MAROONED FAMILY SAVED FROM ISLAND

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—UP—Marooned in their two room shack on a small island in the ice jammed Humber river, Charles Dear, his wife and their three children were faced with almost certain death today as icy waters rose rapidly, forcing them to the roof of the little house.

The water still was rising and threatening to sweep them off the roof when Hilliard and Norman Lang, brothers and members of the Toronto life saving service reached their side after a perilous trip to the island by rowboat.

Battling the churning ice floes the two brothers managed to reach the marooned family loaded Mrs. Dear and one of the children into the small boat and fought their way successfully back to land. Then they returned and got Dear and the other two children.

Seattle and Tacoma experienced light snow early today but it melted rapidly.

WEST CAUGHT IN GRIP OF STORM

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—UP—Winter cracked its icy whip over the entire western half of the country tonight

The vast area in the grip of perhaps the season's severest and most widespread cold wave was bounded on the north by temperatures ranging from three below zero at St. Paul to 32 below at Devils Lake, N. D.

The western fringe of the subnormal temperatures found California winter resorts shivering in unseasonable cold. Light snow fell at San Diego. A mother, father and small son were trapped in their cabin by a blizzard in the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Texas Hit

Central Texas, the southern boundary of the storm area, was scourged with sleety gales and below freezing temperatures. Roads slick as skating rinks stopped automobile traffic.

The eastern side of the enormous cold—buffeting quadrangle was marked by the Missouri valley where temperatures hovered close to the zero mark as the wintry blasts drove down from the Canadian northwest.

Inside the four boundaries of the cold wave, low temperatures, snow and ice were reported almost universally. Illinois highways were too slippery to be used with safety. Heavy snow rapidly was making them even more dangerous.

Zero In Kansas

Snow covered large portions of Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, and Colorado. Temperatures sank to a few degrees above zero at Kansas City.

Residents of the western slopes of the Rocky mountains dug happily out of the heaviest snowfall of the winter. Unusually large precipitation in that territory gave assurance of a good water supply when the snow melts in the spring.

The cold wave broke all records of the winter in Minnesota when therometers at Brainerd sank to 25 degrees below zero. A few hundred miles to the north, at the Pas Manitoba, it was 44 degrees below zero.

Wyoming and Montana were snow covered and bittery cold. It was 40 below at Glasgow, Mont. and 22 below at Miles City.

PARTY MAROONED BY SNOW IN OREGON CAVES

GRANTS PASS, Ore., Jan. 8.—UP—A second relief group tonight pushed its way toward the Oregon caves where Samuel Baker, president of the chamber of commerce and a party are snowbound.

The first relief expedition was unable to penetrate six foot snow banks and did not get closer than nine miles to the caves. One member of the first relief party left on snowshoes Tuesday and had not been heard from late today.

Persons familiar with the situation felt little concern for the marooned party since it had plenty of provisions but fear was expressed whether or not the Inn roof would withstand heavy snow banks. It was estimated that snow is falling at the rate of a foot an hour.

A party of five, including Earl Voorhies, his wife and child was expected to reach Grants Pass tonight after being marooned at a mine near Holland. The party had not been sighted up to dusk.

FIVE ESCAPE IN CANNERY FIRE

ASTORIA, Ore., Jan. 8—(U.P.)—Five men were forced to leap into the icy Columbia river or crawl through smoke and flames when fire suddenly swept the Sanborn-Cutting salmon cannery on the waterfront late today.

The plant was destroyed at an estimated loss of $160,000 to $180,000. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

J. R. Burke, president of the Burke Packing company, which operated the cannery, climbed out of a window and managed to get aboard a nearby launch after swimming a short distance. John Trullinger and J. D. Snell, office employes, leaped into shallow water and waded ashore.

A stiff east wind whipped the flames over the entire plant and endangered the Elmore cannery, which was saved through efforts of a coast guard cutter's powerful pumps.

Included in the losses were about 40 fishing boats stored in the cannery, a quantity of salmon in tins, nets, and other gear.

DICTATORSHIP OF SPAIN SAVED BY COMPROMISE

MADRID, Jan. 7.—(U.P.) —That the year 1929 ended almost tragically for the Spanish dictatorship was admitted by Premier Primo De Rivera himself in a signed article in his official organ La Nacion, Dec. 31.

Complaining of the lack of support on various sides, the dictator wrote:

"Politics is always paradoxical The aristocrate are objecting because in the projected single chamber system they would lose some seats. The conservatives are opposed because they want the constitution of 1876 maintained. Those closest to the church refrain from applauding the dictatorship. Bankers and industrialists, because they are forced to pay their taxes integrally; employers, because the dictatorship is protecting the workers; state employes, because they must work punctually; the press, for reasons everybody knows, all join the others who are against the dictatorship and say it has lasted too long.

No Solution

This would be all right if brought to a solution instead of returning to the point from which we started. Seven years are not sufficient to make the marshes sanitary. I hope God will prevent a general mistake."

In a New Year's statement, De Rivera went even further.

"The year 1929 has been a disastrous one," he said. "Let it go to the devil. I hope 1930 will be easier. I hope God will take Spain under his blessing and protection."

Pact Underway

It would be difficult to be more pessimistic. The truth is that something was happening behind the curtain that justified the premier's dejection.

Between him and King Alfonso a matter was pending that was not a question of confidence, since confidence was not involved, but a situation which amounted to death or prolonged life for the dictatorship.

Compromise Reached

A historical and dramatic meeting presided over by the king was held New Year's eve. The premier read his plan "for transition toward constitutional normality." The king remained seated and asked ministers what they thought of the idea. They could do nothing but nod approval of the dictator's suggestions. The king thereupon arose and in a cold tone said he would take time to think the matter over and study it.

When they left the royal palace after the meeting, the ministers thought the government's resignation was imminent. But in his eagerness to retain power, De Rivera got in touch alone with the king and a compromise was reached enabling the premier to announce that the dictatorship would continue for another half year.
